

Last November, the students of 1º Bachillerato participated in the FICX62. And as always, we would like to share some of our reviews with you.

Last Swim:

Last Swim is a 2024 British film directed by Sasha Nathwani. It won the Crystal Bear and was featured at the International Film Festival in Gijón, receiving critical acclaim.

The story follows Ziba, an intelligent and sensitive teenager struggling with mental health. After receiving her grades, she spends the day with friends to hide her despair. As night falls, she contemplates suicide, but Merf unexpectedly intervenes, saving her.

We really loved how the film sincerely addressed sensitive topics such as depression, self-worth, addiction and suicide, reflecting challenges many adolescents face. However, its slow pacing and abrupt ending felt slightly unsatisfying, leaving us wanting more closure.

In conclusion, Last Swim is a touching and daring film that we recommend to anyone who appreciates emotional and reflective storytelling.

Last Swim:

Last Swim is a recent film set in London directed by Sasha Nathwani whose main character is Ziba Soofi.

Ziba is a British Iranian girl who has a disease. Her goal is to get into London University College to study astrophysics. When she gets her A level marks, she plans to go out with her friends to be in a unique moment.

The best thing is the dynamic between Ziba and her friends. Also, how they help each other in everything. Despite that, there are things that we didn't like, for example, when Ziba didn't tell her disease to her friends or the slowness of the film.

In conclusion, if you like drama and romance movies, you should watch it.

Last Swim:

Last week we went to watch the movie "Last Swim" directed by Sasha Nathwani.

A British Iranian student called Ziba plans to celebrate her A Levels with her friends Shea, Merf and Tara. However, Ziba has got recently a serious illness which will affect her future.

As the film is told from a teenager's point of view, it was easier to us to understand Ziba's problems. The most memorable part was the final event; it was impressive. However, one negative aspect was how sad the movie is sometimes. Sensitive people may not like it.

In our opinion, it was a very entertaining film. Anyone who likes drama movies should watch it.

Last Swim:

Last Swim is a film directed by Sasha Nathwani. The main character is Ziba, a Persian girl living in London.

The film starts by showing that Ziba has a terminal disease and has planned how to spend her last day with her closest friends. Ziba's plan was to end her life after meeting up with her friends. Then, an unpredicted car crash involving a friend made her forget the plan and eventually discard it.

What we liked about the movie were the scenes where the friend group was fooling around, and we didn't like the slow-motion scenes at the end.

We think it's an enjoyable movie that highlights the importance of teenagers' mental health and we recommend it for that reason.

Last Swim:

The film we saw last week, called Last Swim, was directed by Sasha Nathwani and takes place in London.

The main character is a young girl called Ziba, who has a deadly disease. Because of that, she is determined to spend her last moments with her friends. Nevertheless, in some parts of the film, Ziba's nose started to bleed, which made her intentions of hiding her disease from the others more complicated.

What we liked the most about the film was the fact that going through bad situations can join two people. We did not like the open ending, and we would have preferred a more definite one.

In conclusion, we would recommend this film to those who love drama.

The film is produced from Ziba's point of view, this makes us see how she really feels. We liked the human side of the story. However, we did not like the open end the film gave us.

In our opinion, we recommend this film to people who like to see realistic and expressive characters.
